Strike

The 600 teachers employed by the boards in the North Central East School Authorities Association have served notice that unless a settlement is achieved a strike will commence at 12:01 on September 20. Issues in dispute are salary grid, administration allowances, board contributions to insurance plans and substitute teachers' salaries.

Teacher negotiating chairman Walter Kulak said that teachers are attempting to achieve salary increases equivalent to those achieved by their colleagues elsewhere in the province. "The aspirations of teachers do not exceed guidelines established by either the provincial or federal governments."

Kulak expressed a sincere desire that an agreement be concluded prior to the strike taking place. "Teachers are really not interested in going on strike because of the effect it has on the education of students. However, the economic restraint being placed on us by school boards with their two percent offer is more restraint than the teachers think they should bear". The teachers have been without a contract since January 1, 1983.

ATA chief negotiator Joe Berlando wants to avoid a teacher withdrawal of services. "We have been in contact with the government mediator, Elizabeth Boros, and have indicated that we are prepared to meet anytime in order to attempt to conclude a reasonable collective agreement for 1983."

School jurisdictions in the North Central East School Authorities Association are: County of Athabasca No. 12, County of St. Paul No. 19, County of Smoky Lake No. 13, County of Thorhild No. 7, County of Two Hills No. 1, Lac La Biche School Division No. 21, Glen Avon Protestant Separate School District No. 5, St. Paul Regional School District No. 1.

A familiar sight as students leave the school for lunch. Will these doors be locked?

A Look at the Review

You hold in your hand the very first edition of the Lakeland Review. With hard work, your support and some luck (not necessarily in that order), there will be many more editions pass through your hands.

The Review understands that Elk Point has been introduced to a number of newspapers over the years. To ensure our own continuance, we plan to start slowly, growing only if local support warrants it. 'Small is better than nothing at all' will be our watch dog for awhile.

Local content is the key words at the Review. Or rather, will be. This edition is lacking local news; we need assistance from the district's groups, organizations and potential writers. If you know of an up-coming event or news worthy item, please let us know.

We are a weekly community newspaper and on no account do we plan to compete with any major newspapers. Should response warrant it, we plan to publish not only local news and sports but entertaining, informative local columns (like Kitchen Korner Kates), a community calendar, contests and whatever else may interest you. With your help the Review will inform, entertain and sell. If you have any suggestions, beefs or bouquets, please let us know.

Health Care changes affect you

As of October 1, 1983 the Alberta Health Care Insurance Plan will introduce a new collection policy which will link the payments of health care premiums to the eligibility for insured basic health services.

Under the new policy, your premiums must be paid to within three months of the current billing period to ensure your continuous coverage. If premiums go unpaid beyond that period payment of claims on your behalf will be suspended. The plan does not intend to suspend coverage arbitrarily nor deny benefits to residents in financial need, so if you are suffering such hardship, you may be entitled to a partial or full reduction on your premiums. Reductions are based on the amount of your taxable income for the previous year. If you qualify, you may apply to have your current and even your back premiums reduced.

It is to your advantage to have a valid health insurance card, to carry your card at all times and to make sure the Alberta Health Care Insurance Plan has your correct address.

As part of the new policy, a new card will be issued before October 1, 1983 to all persons whose Alberta Health Care premium accounts are in good standing.

If you are a senior citizen, widow, widower under the Alberta Widows pension program or a social assistant recipient or any other Albertan exempt from paying health care premiums, you will be issued with a new card and your benefits will continue without interruption.

Code of Ethics

as adopted by the Lakeland Review

The Community Weekly Newspaper is an information medium which has a profound influence on the lives of individuals and groups to which it is addressed.

Therefore, the community newspaper carries a heavy responsibility with respect to its readers and the area that it serves. The editors of community newspapers recognize the basic right of man, above all contemporary man, to be well-informed, form opinions and express them freely and thus it is their intent to contribute to his knowledge.

This is why the community newspapers adhere to the principle of liberty in seeking out and publishing information they consider to be the essential basis for the free growth of man and human society.

The community newspapers also believe that freedom of the press is a guarantee of the free discussion which is indispensable to the functioning of a democratic state.

The community newspapers pledge themselves to accomplish their primary mission which is to serve society in liberty and truth. Consequently, they are adopting the following code of ethics.

The Search for Truth

A community weekly newspaper's basic and constant commitment is to bring its readers information which is precise, complete, honest and in good taste.

1. A community newspaper does not attempt to obtain information, photographs or documents through abuse of confidence, bribery, intimidation or other dishonest practices.

2. A community newspaper respects engagements which it has undertaken, particularly professional secrecy with respect to sources of information.

Speaking the Truth

A community weekly newspaper places truth before everything else and respects the reader's right to know the truth.

3. A community newspaper seeks for the truth in all information and covers human activities without distorting the facts or misleading its readers.

4. A community newspaper will not deliberately print publicity or news items which it knows to be false, deceitful or contrary to the public interest.

5. A community newspaper rejects news of doubtful value or, if such items are published, states their degree of probability and the limits of investigation possibilities available to the newspaper's staff.

6. A community newspaper does not avoid, hide, or distort the truth of facts or ideas which may not meet with its approval.

7. A community newspaper avoids sensationalism when dealing with news of a morbid or trivial nature.

8. A community newspaper does not condone headlines which contradict reported news items, distortion or other dishonest use of illustrations or documents.

9. A community newspaper promptly and truthfully retracts any news items which prove to be erroneous, particularly if they are prejudicial.

10. A community newspaper, in order to prevent any compromising situations, will accept no gift, no subsidy, or any favour which might lead to a restriction of its free voice and lead its staff to violate professional ethics.

Respect for the Journalist

11. A community newspaper's management staff assume full responsibility for everything that the paper publishes.

12. A journalist in the service of a community newspaper may not be subjected to reprisals on the part of management for publishing news which is in the public interest, has been truthfully reported, and does not appear to be libelous.

Rights of the Public

A community weekly newspaper places the public interest above special interests, except for the inviolable human rights of the individual.

14. A community newspaper refuses any material which might cause grave prejudice without good reason due to invasion of personal privacy.

15. A community newspaper refrains from defamation, intimidation or unproved accusations and only reports well-founded accusations or unfavorable facts concerning a person, group or institution if such material is truly in the public interest.

16. A community newspaper does not anticipate the decisions of justice and avoids influencing them through biased reporting.

Kitchen Corner Kates

We welcome the Lakeland Review to Elk Point and District and wish you much success. The Kates, Marnie, Laverne, Viola, Connie, Holly, Rilla and Marianne hope to meet with Elk Point and District once a week to bring you recipes and helpful hints. At this time of the year its pumpkins, pumpkins everywhere and a good place to utilize them in those nutritious back to school lunches.

We suggest: Pumpkin Muffins, - 125 ml (1/2 cup) Alpha evaporated milk. 175 ml (three quarter cup) pure pumpkin. 125 ml (1/2 cup) Alpha liquid honey. 75 ml (1/3 cup) melted Alpha butter. 1 egg. 175 ml (three quarter cup) all purpose flour. 15 ml (1 tbsp) baking powder. 2 ml (1/2 tsp) each salt, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. 250 ml 1 cup rolled oats or bran. 125 ml (1/2 cup) raisins. 50 ml (1/4 cup) chopped nuts.

Combine milk, pumpkin, honey, butter and egg. Stir rolled oats, raisins and nuts into sifted dry ingredients. Add liquid ingredients to dry mixture and stir just until moist. Fill greased or lined muffin tins three quarters full. Bake at 200 degrees C or 400 degrees F for 20 minutes. Yield 12 muffins.

A trick to stop that saran wrap from burgling when wrapping those school lunches. Store your saran wrap in the freezer section of your fridge. No more problems.

See you next week with more in season recipes.

"Use Respect" Campaign Launched

The Hon. Don Sparrow, Associate Minister of Public Lands and Wildlife, and Mr. Ron Gladish, president of the Alberta Fish and Game Association, Mr. Ralph Jespersen, Vice President of the Unifarm Association, and Mr. Eric Jarvis, Director of Western Stock Growers' Association announced a co-operative campaign to alert sportsmen and other recreationists to obtain permission from landholders before entering onto private or leased lands. "Not only are hunters and anglers urged to use respect, but anyone who might access Alberta's farms and ranch lands while enjoying the outdoors," said Mr. Sparrow.

As part of this campaign, special highly visible signs have been produced for posting at access points to private land. These signs titled "Use Respect" allow the landholder to write in his or her name, location, and phone number so that people may contact them for permission to enter their lands. The signs are available from all Alberta Fish and Wildlife Division offices, Alberta Public Lands Division, the Alberta Fish and Game Association Unifarm Association, and the Western Stock Growers' Association.

Increase in Rabies

Rabies is a very serious virus disease which is contagious and fatal to patients not receiving adequate treatment.

Rabies is a world problem which is spreading alarmingly across Europe and North America. It is carried by wildlife species, such as foxes and skunks. The wild animals infect pets and livestock, which in turn becomes dangerous sources of infection to man. There were over 2,500 confirmed cases of animal rabies in Canada during the past 12 months, and the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources is now studying possible means of vaccinating wildlife carriers of the disease.

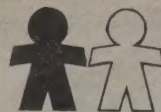

Rabies can be prevented quite simply in pets and livestock by a regular vaccination programme.

Research involved in the prevention of this often fatal disease has been very active and a company world-renowned for their efforts in this field is Institut Merieux. They have now produced a safe vaccine which can be used for dogs, cats, cattle, sheep and horses. This product, IMRAB, has just been released in Canada by May & Baker Canada Inc., one of Institut Merieux's associated companies.

Canadian pet and livestock owners are urged to ask their veterinarians about IMRAB, since it offers an ideal means of breaking the chain of rabies transfer from wildlife to domestic animals and pets to humans.

Collision Statistics

Teenagers between the same age group is among 14.7 per cent of all Albertans involved in collisions in 1982, according to a Collision Statistics report compiled by Alberta Transportation's Safety Branch. The report also shows that the same age group is among the most likely to be killed in traffic crashes. Casualty rates per population were highest for persons between the ages of 15 and 24. The report indicates that 13.5 per cent. Recent Transport Canada observational studies also recorded an increase in seat belt wearing rates in Alberta.

"It is significant that our 1982 statistics show children under 5 as the most likely age group to be secured in a restraint system," says Ross Hogg, Director of Alberta Transportation's Safety Branch. "They were also among the age group least likely to be killed in a collision." The lowest casualty rates were recorded for young children under 9 years of age and for those over the age of 65. Hogg said that in his many years of experience in traffic and collisions with the R.C.M.P. in Alberta, he has never unbuckled a dead person.

"There is much strong evidence to show that seat belts triple a person's chances of survival in a collision," said Hogg. "A person is also one and a half times less likely to be injured when buckled in."

The Safety Branch has placed five brochures at infocentres in 64 retail outlets located in Edmonton and Calgary. "Two of these brochures deal with the importance and effectiveness of buckling up." He said that the Safety Branch has also placed interior transit posters in buses across the province to urge parents to place their youngsters in child restrainers when riding a car. "We also look to reaching grandparents who use buses for transportation. We hope they will influence motoring sons and daughters that the grandchildren must be safely buckled in when travelling in a vehicle. And of course, that also goes for all adults."

Medical matter Bégin misses the boat

National Health and Welfare Minister, Monique Bégin, recently released Preserving Universal Medicare, a federal government position paper which Dr. Marc Baltzan, president of the Canadian Medical Association said contains nothing new and fails to address the problems of medicare.

These he described as current underfunding of health services, especially for chronic care, home care programs, mental health and preventive medicine;

medium and larger general hospitals; the inability of "have not" provincial governments to build and operate new facilities; and the declining proportion of federal government support for health care services.

In 1979, Ottawa contributed 47.2% of the money provided for health care by the various levels of government. That figure dropped to 45.7% in 1980 and 44.2% in 1981. Provincial governments now estimate that the federal government contributions are down to about 40%.

Debate resulting from this position paper with provincial governments and others, will force the federal government to address the real problems of medicare in this country.

User fees deferred

The government is deferring the commencement for the hospital user fee program. Instead of the originally planned date of October 1, 1983, the date has been deferred three months, to January 1, 1984.

The reasons for doing this are twofold:

1. During the summer, the department of hospitals and medical care has been hearing budget appeals from hospital boards throughout the province. It is expected that several boards may have adjustments made to their provincial grants, and until these adjustments are known it is very difficult for the boards to decide whether or not to implement user fees.

2. Hospital boards are required to give 30 days notice of their intention to participate in the user fee program. With budget appeal decisions still unknown to the boards, it would be extremely difficult for them to assess their final financial situation, make the decision on user fees, and give the required 30 days notice for an October 1, 1983 start-up date.

The inside Poop on Pop

This is the title of a very enlightening article about caffeine in soda pop which appeared in the December/January issue of Penny Power (the children's branch of Consumer Reports). Here's what the article said.

In 1980 a group of 19 Maryland, U.S.A. boys aged 8 to 13 were given doses of caffeine in fruit juice. Soon, some experienced symptoms of headaches, stomachache, jumpiness and nervousness. Some found it easier to stay alert but they had trouble sleeping.

The experiment showed the caffeine isn't good for you - kids or adults. It makes the muscles tense and the heart beat faster. That's why parents don't let their children drink coffee - and for that matter, many adults are cutting down caffeine intake by switching to decaffeinated coffee.

What happens to the caffeine the manufacturers remove from coffee? Have you guessed? They sell it to people who manufacture soda pop!

Most people don't know they're drinking caffeine when they drink pop - but about 70% of soda pop contains caffeine! The only way to tell which pop contains caffeine is to read the label.

Mountain Dew, Mr. Phibb and Mellow Yellow contain 33 to 44 mg. caffeine per 12 oz. can. Shasta Cola, Pepsi or Diet Pepsi, Dr. Pepper, Sugar Free Dr. Pepper, Coca Cola, Iced Tea and Sugar Free Tab also contain 33 to 44 mg. caffeine per 12 oz. can. Coffee and cocoa beans, tea leaves and kola nuts all contain caffeine naturally.

Because children weigh less than adults, the same amount of caffeine affects kids more. More bad news - caffeine is a drug, and once we become used to it, it's difficult to cut it out. People may feel depressed, tense and have headaches for several days after stopping its consumption.

The biggest crime of all is, that caffeine is not necessary in soft drinks. Manufacturers can make perfectly good pop without it. Sprite, Patio Orange Soda, Fresca, Hire's Root Beer, and Fanta Orange Soda don't contain caffeine. Remember to check the label. Better yet, switch to fruit juice!!
